Tackle Gear:

The lodge does supply Top Tier fishing gear but any client is more than welcome to bring their own gear. Here are some suggestions you may find helpful if you are planning to bring your own gear.

Fly Fishing:

The bottom, near shore, is gently sloping sand and mostly featureless. The Tarpon can be found anywhere from the backwaters near the surf line to well over 160-foot depth with 60-foot depth most common. For these reasons we recommend that you consider 12 or heavier anti-reverse reels with matched weight, 9' or 10' rods with fighting butt extensions. Your reel should be loaded with at least 200 yards of 30 lb. backing. You will need various sinking tip lines to get your fly down into the feeding zone. The shock leader should be 80 to 100 lb. monofilament and your flies should be 3/0 to 6/0 hook size.

Casting Lures for Tarpon:

Recommended is a reel like the Abu-Garcia Ambassador 7000C, or something comparable, loaded with at least 200 yards of 20 lb. test mono or 30 lb. braid. Leaders should be 80 to 100 lb. monofilament. A 7' casting rod with a long handle works well. The rod should be able to cast 2 oz. lures or a little heavier. The rod should be stiff enough in the backbone to set the hook hard or walk the fish around the boat but have a soft enough tip to finesse a wild fish for an extended time.

Spinning tackle requirements are much the same as for baitcasting gear. In either case, a reel with a smooth drag system and a rod with a nice stiff lower section helps to handle these fish. Don't hesitate to try out your own lure selections. One never knows what might be irresistible to these big fish.

Fishing for Snook:

Snook can be found in the surf or in the rivers and lagoons. The gear required for Snook is a little lighter than for Tarpon. A shock leader of 40 to 60 lb. test is a good choice. A reel with a good drag system filled with 100 to 150 yards of 12 to 17 lb. test line fitted to a 6 and 1/2 foot or 7 foot rod is recommended. For lures, consider 1/2 to 3/4 oz. Rapalas, 3/4 to 1 oz. Bucktail Jigs, Mirrolures and Top Water plugs.

In the Rivers and Lagoons:

The freshwater fishing requires very accurate casting skills. The further back in the jungle you and your guide go, the more challenging it becomes to place your casts well and the more the fight leans to the fish's favor. A 7-weight fly rod is a good choice for Snook, Machaca and Guapote. For smaller fish like the Mojara and Mangrove Snapper, a 4-weight rod is sufficient. Floating line with tapered leaders and popping bugs work nicely. Lightweight casting or spinning reels with 8 to 10 lb. test line fitted to rods 5' to 6' in length are best. Deep into the jungle backwaters, room to swing a rod is at a premium, so consider a shorter rod than what you might otherwise prefer. Small topwater plugs that chug, pop and create a lot of commotion as well as small spinner baits have been most successful in the rivers
